

Elk River--One Valley, One Community

Elk River

MANY

(Continued from Page 12)

Robert McPhail at the family settlement. Left: Taylor, Plummer, Kelly, Hildrich, and Robinson before McPhail's at Camp Carson with livestock.

Railroad tracks in Elk River just have been used in some times, an abandonment.

HEAVY FORESTS AND RICH SOIL ATTRACT LOGGERS, FARMERS

Elk River valley is one of the richest settlements in these hardy woods. Logging is one of the most industrial vocations to be found in this section. The heavy forests and rich soil, and the fact that the valley is situated in the heart of the timbered region of the state, have attracted many loggers and farmers to this section of the state. The heavy forests and rich soil, and the fact that the valley is situated in the heart of the timbered region of the state, have attracted many loggers and farmers to this section of the state.

Where the scene was filmed—abandoned mill at Elk, on Elk river near town.

The preparation of these Park school, near Elk, study in woods setting.

Timber and people of Elk River valley make a happy grove.

The valley that you see in the wonderful land of Camp Carson, left in right, Mary De. Brown, Mary Johnson, Annie and John Barks and Joe Brown, and

The valley that you see in the wonderful land of Camp Carson, left in right, Mary De. Brown, Mary Johnson, Annie and John Barks and Joe Brown, and

The Park house was built in 1886, but is 75 years young.

Blackhead horses in mixed outfit in a show place.

This timber house bears Hildrich's name marks.

One of Elk river valley's two main roads.

Looking up Elk river valley from Hildrich on Elk road. It is hard to realize this is in the same world as the other lands.

Timber and people of Elk River valley make a happy grove.

The valley that you see in the wonderful land of Camp Carson, left in right, Mary De. Brown, Mary Johnson, Annie and John Barks and Joe Brown, and Engine No. 2 in the place of a mill, with a mill of supplies as seen in Camp Carson.

The valley that you see in the wonderful land of Camp Carson, left in right, Mary De. Brown, Mary Johnson, Annie and John Barks and Joe Brown, and

Elk River valley is one of the richest settlements in these hardy woods. Logging is one of the most industrial vocations to be found in this section. The heavy forests and rich soil, and the fact that the valley is situated in the heart of the timbered region of the state, have attracted many loggers and farmers to this section of the state.

The valley that you see in the wonderful land of Camp Carson, left in right, Mary De. Brown, Mary Johnson, Annie and John Barks and Joe Brown, and

The valley that you see in the wonderful land of Camp Carson, left in right, Mary De. Brown, Mary Johnson, Annie and John Barks and Joe Brown, and