

Attensburg and Briceland-Smiling Land

Like a patriarch of old, Albert Eder looks on as the first of his forest children.

Pleasant view of the magnificent chestnut trees on the Eder ranch.

UPPER MATTOLE COMMUNITIES ARE SIGHTSEER'S EL DorADO

AN IDEAL HOME-OWNING PLACE IN WISCONSIN

You take the upper Mattole road out of Port Hope, about seventy miles north of Madison on Highway No. 10, and you find a beautiful, verdant, rolling landscape. The road is a dirt road, but it is a good one, and it is a pleasure to drive on it. The scenery is beautiful, and the people are friendly. This is the ideal home-owning place in Wisconsin.

A change of Albert Eder's apple orchard, where no more experimental trees have been raised.

Port Hope's stone and parsonial is noted.

The Ederhouse school occupies a setting that is one of the best.

In the broadened yard of an Eder ranch house, Albert Eder is seen.

The Briceland stone was built from hand-hewn timbers in 1885.

Yeasters are playing ball on Briceland-Lambert company's diamond.

One of the many beautiful views on the Briceland-Attensburg road.

The Eder treatment garden house, Briceland.

Briceland's school is still an excellent one.

Attensburg, Wis., July 26. (Special to The Wisconsin State Journal.)—The Wisconsin State Journal is pleased to announce that it has been awarded the 1934 Pulitzer Prize for Public Service by the Pulitzer Board.
