

Redcrest, Colo., was the original site of the Englewood Literary Society. The society was organized in 1917, and has since that time been the center of literary activity in the town. The society has published a number of literary magazines, and has held many literary contests. The society is now one of the most active literary organizations in the state.

Among the clubs which attend attention is a "Ladies' Club" which has been organized in the town. The club has many members, and has held many social gatherings. The club is now one of the most active social organizations in the town.

Several other clubs have been organized in the town, and are now active. These include a "Golf Club," a "Baseball Club," and a "Tennis Club." The clubs are now one of the most active recreational organizations in the town.

The town of Englewood is now one of the most active and progressive communities in the state. The town has many fine buildings, and is now one of the most attractive communities in the state.

The town of Englewood is now one of the most active and progressive communities in the state. The town has many fine buildings, and is now one of the most attractive communities in the state.

Redcrest-Englewood--People Return

One of the Englewood houses built on the Englewood ranch.

Both gate between two sections, center of Englewood ranch.

Englewood Park has brought the houses with its return there.

Returner's new baseball park, given by Ben Foster, whose daughter

Community Blends With Picturesque Redwood Setting

By CHAS. W. BROWN

Scattered along north of Englewood, on Highway 101, are some of the most picturesque homes in the state. These homes, built by the Englewood Literary Society, are now one of the most attractive communities in the state.

The homes are built on a hillside, and are surrounded by trees. The homes are now one of the most attractive communities in the state.

The homes are built on a hillside, and are surrounded by trees. The homes are now one of the most attractive communities in the state.

The homes are built on a hillside, and are surrounded by trees. The homes are now one of the most attractive communities in the state.

The homes are built on a hillside, and are surrounded by trees. The homes are now one of the most attractive communities in the state.

The homes are built on a hillside, and are surrounded by trees. The homes are now one of the most attractive communities in the state.

The homes are built on a hillside, and are surrounded by trees. The homes are now one of the most attractive communities in the state.

The homes are built on a hillside, and are surrounded by trees. The homes are now one of the most attractive communities in the state.

The homes are built on a hillside, and are surrounded by trees. The homes are now one of the most attractive communities in the state.

Highway 101 is Redcrest's "Main street" complete with landscape.

Old log cabinhouse is as good as new.

Checked away in center of Redcrest—Mrs. John Brown, Mrs. John Brown, and "Mother" Ada Smith.

Robert Child's house, on Child's ranch.

Attractive dining room, Englewood Park

Continued on page 10.

The town of Englewood is now one of the most active and progressive communities in the state. The town has many fine buildings, and is now one of the most attractive communities in the state.

The town of Englewood is now one of the most active and progressive communities in the state. The town has many fine buildings, and is now one of the most attractive communities in the state.

The town of Englewood is now one of the most active and progressive communities in the state. The town has many fine buildings, and is now one of the most attractive communities in the state.

The town of Englewood is now one of the most active and progressive communities in the state. The town has many fine buildings, and is now one of the most attractive communities in the state.

The town of Englewood is now one of the most active and progressive communities in the state. The town has many fine buildings, and is now one of the most attractive communities in the state.

The town of Englewood is now one of the most active and progressive communities in the state. The town has many fine buildings, and is now one of the most attractive communities in the state.

The town of Englewood is now one of the most active and progressive communities in the state. The town has many fine buildings, and is now one of the most attractive communities in the state.